RUNNING SHORT ON SHORTS Be sure you have a clean pair of team shorts for the finals on Saturday. A number of people have been wearing theirs, which is fine. Just don't be caught short later on.

KEYS If you have lost yours, see Linda in Metzger 118.

WHAM-O®
SINCE 1948

July 18, 1982

Dear W.F.C. Competitor:

For the eighth year in succession, the Wham-O Frisbee disc endorsement program will be related to the results of the W.F.C.

As in 1981, the Open Overall winner will be offered a two-year, Wham-O endorsement contract worth $9,000. The Women's Overall winner will be offered a similar contract worth $5,000. Both of these will be paid over a two-year period and are contingent upon the acceptance and signing of the endorsement contract.

Sincerely,

Robert P. Gardner

CADDY UPDATE Vance Galloway, the 14-year-old D.C.ite, did get taken up on his offer to caddy in Disc Golf. Steve Hubbard was the first to ask Vance, who accepted. (Talk about fast employment!) Steve, who injured his ankle Monday night warming up for freestyle with handspring practice, played the round on crutches and shot a respectable even par. Vance netted himself a Hubbard mini for his efforts. He did have to go in the thorns once but Steve spared him the lake.

Vance says that if Crazy John gets to the semis, he will be his caddy. Considering John shot a pacesetting 12 under in the first round, Vance will be his man.

Top 4 advance to semis. An important semi-final seeding meeting will be held on the 2nd floor lounge at 7:45 p.m. tonight. At least one representative from each team must be there.

WFC AUCTION Although it started a bit late and the crowd was not quite in the "buying mood" that was evident in Manassas, the 1982 WFC auction went down fairly well.

Many heavy items went for bargain prices including a set of red and green Super Pros for $32.00, a 100 mold pin prototype also for $32.00. and a Frisbie Pie safe for $200.00 cash.

Money exchange went rather smoothly with the Flying Disc Collectors Association netting a nice $40.25 profit for their operation.

Special thanks to Gary, Ron, Mike and Annette for making it an enjoyable evening.

THE AUSTRALIANS HAVE DISAPPEARED! So it might have seemed from yesterday's inadvertent failure to list them in our housing list. We apologize for the oversight and hope that the inability to readily find them did not unduly cut down on their social life Tuesday. Their rooms are:

Brian Allen	320	Vince Nesci	319
Rob Hancock	318	Mark Powers	317
Gail Lynch	317	Ian Whitehead	319

RESULTS OF YESTERDAY'S TRIVIA CONTEST Wow! What a close race we had! Five entries were submitted, and the only way to get a winner was to assign points to the various parts of the questions. And although Darrell Lynn and the team of Kurt Lampkin/Charlie Callahan (no combined entries from here on, please) came prepared for question 2 by bringing last year's program with them, the winner of the WFC oddity disc is Tita Ugalde. Congratulations! Also, thanks to Bill Burns and Frank Neef for their submissions too.

1. The 11 Open Division competitors here who have won specific world titles at WFC's are: Tom Kennedy (Golf 75), Dan Roddick (Freestyle & Accuracy 75), Jens & Erwin Velasquez (FS 76 & 77), Snapper Pierson (Golf 79), Al Bonopane (DDC 78), Jeff Watson (Golf 80), Jon Cohn & Paul Brenner (DDC 81), and Scott Zimmerman (SCF 81). That's 10. While I had Tom Monroe (SCF 79) in mind, and although he did win the 1982 Open SCF title at the Easterns, he is a Masters Division player here. However, as Tita Ugalde pointed out, Michael Young, as Laura Engel's partner, did share in the Women's World title at the 1978 WFC. (He has the trophy to prove it). I gave Tita bonus points and did not penalize anyone who wrote down Monroe.

The 4 Women here who have won WFC events are Tita Ugalde (SCF 79), Michele Marini (Distance 79, Golf 79 & 80), Suzanne Fields (Distance 810, and Judy Horowitz (SCF & Golf 81).

The events not represented by world champions at WFC 82 are Distance in the Open Division; Freestyle and DDC in the Women's.

2. The 8 advertisers who had full-page ads in the 1981 WFC Official Program were: Carta Blanca (beer), Mazda (cars), Cycle Dog Food, William B. Tanner, Inc. (broadcast advertising), Annabelle's (candy bars), United Temporary Services (office personnel), Knudsen (apple juice), and Wham-O. I gave partial points for good guesses: Cronus watches, Calistoga, Van's shoes, etc. Be sure to study this year's program for next year's trivia contests.

3. Both Kirkland and Kalb in 1976 preferred the Super Pro.

4. Wham-O Pros of the late '73-early '74 period were thinner than other such models because of a plastic shortage during the Arab oil crisis. (Frank Neef was the only submitter to remember this not-so-current event).

5. The two countries never before represented at the WFC are Ireland and Switzerland. From the Emerald Isle are Brendan Nolan and Patricia Harrington. Paul Francz is the sole Swiss represntative.

* * * * * *

Charlie and Kurt, I was so stunned by receiving your trivia answers before noon (unheard of!!) that I gave you 50 bonus points. But I was so amazed that you misspelled Wham-O Whamo that I took them all away. - M.D.

WEDNESDAY'S TRIVIA CONTEST In our continuing quest to entertain and educate, we offer you four tantalizing questions, testing your knowledge of WFC history and - in questions 4 & 5 - esoteric golf rules. The quiz is worth 100 points and a WFC oddity disc to the winner.

1. (45 Points). Talking with the players in the Masters, Grandmasters and Senior Grandmasters Divsions will certainly help you with this one, because we want to know: (only as regards the 1982 WFC)

A. Who are the oldest and youngest players in each of the three Seniors Divisions (exact ages for a bonus). (30 points + bonus).
B. What is the average age for each WOLF Division.

2. (15 Points). Tell us who has competed at all 9 WFC's, who has qualified for all of them, and who has participated in all nine.

3. (20 Points). The United States team has 86 players actually attending the 1982 WFC. In the past two years, the percentage of Californians and New Yorkers has been exactly 50% of the U.S. total. At this WFC:

A. How many states are represented? (Hint: less than 50) (5 points)
B. What percentage of the U.S. total is made up of players from New York and California? (5 points)
C. What 4 states combined make up more than 50% of the U.S. total? (4 pts.)
D. What 6 states are represented by only 1 player each? (6 pts.)

4. Questions 4 & 5 are taken from the last trivia contest in the 1982 WFC REVIEW. Due to a mutiny of the REVIEW staff (they actually demanded sleep) we never did publish the answers. So we ask again:

(10 Points) You step up to your first hole in golf. There's a large tree located directly above the Pole Hole. Your drive is high and hard, smashes into the tree and jars loose one of the limbs, which, ironically falls into the Pole Hole. Astoundingly, your disc is touching the basket. And although over half your disc is over the cylinder of the basket, it is suspended by the limb in midair.

A. Did you ace this hole?
B. Why or why not?

5. (10 points) After having recovered from the trying situation just mentioned, you tee off on your next hole. Once again, your drive is high and hard and this time smashes into a tree at a height well over two meters. Incredibly, it partially dislodges yet another limb (sorry, Tom Boda, we'll try to be more careful) which proceeds to swing back and forth underneath the tree with your disc wedged in it. At certain points during the swing, your disc is still above two meters. But at the lowest point of its arc, it is just under six feet.

What do you do? Take a stroke penalty? Hope that the wind blows it down? Pray to the tree god? Take the disc out of the tree with no penalty. What?

SO WILL THEY SECTION?

Maybe... As you probably know, we have statistical tests to evaluate the need for sectioning events. These tests will be applied to the SCF, Distance and Golf performances after all of the first rounds are completed today. Results indicating sufficiently divergent mean scores will cause us to draw players independently from each pool (sectioning). If the differences in the means are not greater than our established levels we will draw advancing players from both sections based on their scores.

AND WILL THEY FIND THEIR MISSING...

ORANGE TOWEL AND SHAMPOO, ETC. Patricia Harrington (Room 333)(Ireland)

TOM BODA BAG Paul Francz (Room 331) (Switzerland)

"OUTER FLIGHTS TOWARDS INNER VISION" BROWN T-SHIRT Gerhard Petz (Room 206) (Austria)

If you have found any of these items, these European players would be very grateful for their return. Keep an eye open if you will.

THURSDAY NIGHT HOOPS Individuals and teams who wish to play a little 3-on-3 basketball Thursday night should sign up on the first floor bulletin board. Games will go to 15, win by 2. Trophy discs go to the winners.

DAILY DONUTS As Stork told us at the Orientation meeting Sunday night, the most laid-back competitor at the WFC could be Les Bryant. Les, one-half of the English team, believe less is more. Hearing his name announced at the start of Discathon, he found himself to be all the way over on the other side of the field. Obviously, great effort would need to be exerted for Les to get there in time for his run. "Oh, well. Maybe next year."

Les also slept through Distance prelims yesterday morning. Hey, it's only another event. Les told us he had had a wonderful rest, and to prove it, he did play golf in the afternoon.

While it may come as a shock to his foursome this morning, Les claims he will get up in time to play the round. After all, if necessary, he can nap through the SCF prelims this afternoon.

RIGHT AT HOME Some things are new to the Irish team. Their first time here, they were first faced with Discathon. Tough way to begin. Then Tuesday, they saw Pole Holes for the first time in Golf. As Patricia Harrington said, "About the only thing we're used to is the rain."

WOW! WHAT A PLAY Gail Lynch of Australia teamed with American Mary Lowry in DDC. Used to Ultimate, Mary was diving left and right to save points. At one point, Gail was in awe as Mary made a terrific diving catch. In fact, Gail was so intrigued as to whether Mary would make the catch she stood amazed - the other disc firmly in her hand.

FOLLOW THAT GUY AND STEP ON IT Alan Beaver and Gregg Hosfeld may be cut from the same mold. They came in tied with the same Discathon time. That night they ran again - in mini Discathon. It does not seem to matter what weight disc they use. They finished in a dead heat again.

HOT DISCS IN COLD WATER Tuesday we told you John David went swimming for a disc. He did. But we erred. He did not find the disc. Ed Headrick gave him a lot of flak because John did not just toss one disc in, he sank two in a row. One of them was a 191 gram 70 mold. A heavy loss. So what did Ed then proceed to do? Plunked a pink 41 mold (rare) in the drink. Naturally, this story was brought to you by hole 15.

LET'S SEE...FRISBEE IS A BIT MORE STRENUOUS THAN GOLF, BUT NOT QUITE AS TOUGH AS...

This chart appeared in the July 1982 issue of PLAYBOY. If you think they might have failed to do enough research on our sport, you might want to drop them a line. (Sorry, I can't run Discathon tonight; I've got a headache).

WHAT CONDITION IS YOUR CONDITIONING IN?

if staying fit is your reason for exercising, here's a chart to show you how to keep the work in working out

After reviewing current sports-medicine research and literature—as well as consulting many of the top practitioners in the sports-medicine field—we arrived at a sort of sweaty Top 40. Taking six factors—strength, flexibility, endurance, calorie consumption, muscular definition and eye-hand coordination—into account and assuming the frequency and duration of all workouts to be equal, we rated various forms of exercise. The results, placed here on a 100-point scale, are a blend: they reflect not only the conditioning value of an exercise but also the difficulty of performing it to a high level of proficiency. After all, the casual athlete wants to know before he starts something how tough it is to do it well, not just how fast his heart is going to pump. Thus, we list tennis above jogging, even though nearly all other charts place jogging near the top. We recognize that tennis is harder: It places greater, more varied demands on athletic ability. How does your sport stack up? Read on—all together, now, by the numbers....
