nnnice Bowl '94

by Kim Theesen, #7513

Lincoln Flying Disc Golf Club's Fourth Annual Ice Bowl was held Saturday, January 22nd at Interstate Disc Golf Course. An unseasonably warm day of 57 degrees greeted thirty-five disc golfers. We couldn't have wished for better conditions in January. It's always going to be pot luck when you hold a tourney this time of the year in Nebraska.

A sudden death playoff was utilized to decide the '94 champion in the advanced division. Three disc golfers were tied with the score of 51 after completion of 18 holes. Terry Parker of Council Bluffs, Iowa, deuced hole no. 1 to win first place. Steve Crane, also of Council Bluffs, and Rick Fleege of Lincoln, battled to hole no. 4 to decide second and third, respectively.

Only one toss separated the top two finishers of the amateur division. Lincolnite Mike Fleege scored 52 to beat Tim Buchtel of Grand Island, Nebraska, who scored 53. I logged a 57 to take third in the ams.

Six first-timers took part in the novice division. John Boldt shot a 59 and narrowly beat out the 60 scored by Joel Sturgeon. Scott Bossung came in third with a 73. All of the novices were from Lincoln.

First place prizes for this year's tourney was a framed customed designed colored certificate for each of the three divisions. Also, all first and second place finishers received a comemerative 1994 Ice Bowl disc. Those in third place got their pick of a disc from LFDC's disc box along with a bonus disc to the first place advanced winner.

This being my first tourney as tournament director, I was ecstatic to see so many participants. The cooperation and patience of every one of the participants was most appreciated. I look forward to future tourneys and, hopefully, more work as a tournament director.

Ice'n in the BIG O

by Pat Raybould, #4442

Just like Tonya Harding, the forty-three disc golfers present at River City Flying Disc Association's Ice Bowl Tournament were literally skating on thin ice. Saturday, January 29th, found the temperature at a brisk 24°, but very sunny and actually pleasant once you got your blood circulating. The toughest part was adjusting to the layer of thin ice that blanketed the entire course. Sometimes this ice benefited one's throws by getting that extra skip or slide. Unfortunately in my case I seemed to be getting that extra slide on my approach shots. You should have seen that disc slide way past the basket.

You have to commend the players that did show in this weather. Forty-three was truly a surprise. This topped Lincoln's turnout the previous week which saw thirty-five players sweating it out in the 57° heat.

I got the pleasure of having the novice winner Nick McCord in my foursome. Nick shot consistently well and ended up with a 60. Taking first place in advanced was Chris Oien who shot an excellent 51 for the day. It was like a Platte River ice jam for second place with Chuck Straub besting Karl Kopp and David Nolte in a sudden death play-off. Not far behind this threesome were the other Kopp brothers Brian and Kurt. They made the long drive from Chicago and it was Brian some years ago (we think '89 and '90?) who had won back to back Ice Bowls in Council Bluffs.

Overall Ice Bowl Champion: Terry Parker

Seth Hakanson posted a 59 to win the amateurs. Kim Theesen and myself battled it out for second place in sudden death play-off. We both choked on easy birdie putts early on. Finally Kim broke the tie with a beautiful fifty

It's a Party Situation

A mini Lincoln Flying Disc Club meeting was held Monday, March 7th, at Pat Raybould's house. The purpose of the meeting was to iron out some details for the annual LFDC party and the election of club officers. First things first, the party... This year's party will be held at the Southwood Club House on Saturday, April 9. Like last year, the club will provide the three B's, burger, buns and beer. Unlike last year, YOU, the party guest, are expected to bring a side dish to round out the dinning fare. You know what a side dish is: a salad, chips, some raw veggies. The party is free and door prizes will be up for grabs for all current (that's dues paying) members of the LFDC. What, you haven't paid your dues? Never fear, you can pay up at the party and get in on the prizes. Another feature of the party is the promise of a super stocked disc box. All of the new Innova discs, as well as the hottest disc on the market today: the Cyclone, will be available at LFDC bargain prices. These discs are just cold from the mold, so be the first one on your block to your hands on these new models.

"...door prizes for all current (that's dues paying) members."

This year's party will also have the election of new club officers. It was decided at the meeting that a new governing format for the club will implemented. Instead of president , vice-president, sectetary and treasurer, we will elect an executive committee comprised of 5 or 7 members. This format will hopefully distribute the leadership load so one person doesn't end up doing everything for all events. It will be similar to the format used by the PDGA. Please think about who you want to be on the committee, even if it is yourself, and come to the party and VOTE!

Speaking of voting, the final vote will be taken on the new pin placements. Proposed alternate placements were in the last issue of The Flyer. You may bring this page along to the party, or pick up a ballot that night. There have been many changes on the course over the winter, and many trees are gone. If you can, go out to the course and take a look around. Most of the changes are on the Back 9, however there is a significant change on Hole 4. Keep these tree changes in mind and cast your vote on April 9.

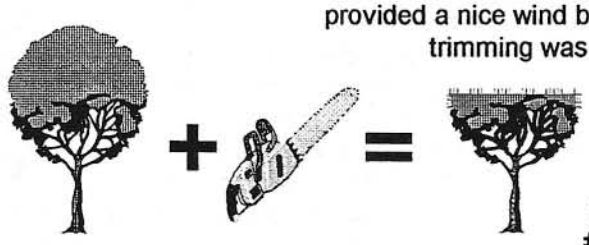
Park Gets a Buzz Cut

Last summer's tornado that went through Max Roper park inflected major damage. This winter the Parks Department came in to cut down the trees that were effected by this storm. To most disc golfers that have played Interstate Course lately are somewhat shocked by the large number of trees that were actually removed and trimmed.

The following is a bloody account of the details. Those of you that have weak stomachs may want to pass on finishing this article.

That huge tree that used to guard the basket on Hole #4 is history. Six beautiful tall pine trees along #12 (the tornado whacked their tops off) were chopped down. The next hole over, #13, also had 6 big pines cut down. Hole #15 is now a wide open downhill shot. Cut down at the ankles were three good sized trees. There is discussion on moving #15A a little to the east in order to bring what trees are left into play. Holes #16 and #8 each had one tree plucked out. In total 18 trees were removed from the park that had some kind of effect on how one plays a particular hole.



The carnage doesn't stop here. Loads of trees along the creek were cut down. Many of those trees provided a nice wind block. Major trimming was performed on a large number of trees. Most notable are the trees on #17, once requiring a large anhyzer to get around, now

The Games: Progress Report #3

As of this writing, the '94 Cornhusker State Games are exactly three months away. At the end of January, we received confirmation of PDGA class "C" sanctioning for our advanced division. The nature of this event made it necessary for us to request that certain requirements be waived, so our great thanks go the PDGA for accepting our application. My assistant director and I have both submitted PDGA officials' exams, and expect to be card carrying officials by tourney time. We want this event to go by the book and will gladly accept any suggestions or criticisms any of you might have before, during, or after play.

The Games' handbook, with sport descriptions and registration form, is due out the first of April. These handbooks are automatically mailed to everyone who participated in last year's games. We have been allotted enough postage to mail a copy to those of you who live outside Lincoln and Omaha, but need to get the rest out hand to hand. They should be ready by the LFDC spring party (April 9th) and if so, we'll have them for you there. We will do our best to get one to all who want one by the end of April, but if you do not have one by that time, please give us a call and we'll get one to you ASAP. Photocopies of the registration form are acceptable.

There are certain aspects of the event with which we could use some volunteered help. We have budgeted for four volunteers; they would receive t-shirts and lunch both days. This would be a good job for a non-playing husband, wife, etc. Second, if anyone could have access to a ham radio or a cellular phone for the weekend, please let me know. Lastly, if any of you are from Nebraska cities outside of Lincoln, the torch run will take five different routes all over the state, and will be passing through dozens of towns, many of which will hold special events. If you are from out-state, and might be interested, please contact me and we'll see if the torch will pass through your town.

CORNHUSKER STATE GAMES

Nebraska's Amateur Sports Festival

To be eligible to compete, you must be a Nebraska resident of at least thirty days (students living in Lincoln are eligible). You must also have amateur standing in the sport of disc golf. You cannot be considered amateur if you: a) have pro level membership in the PDGA, or b) have taken prize money in a pro/open division in the past.

We expect the advanced and intermediate divisions will have a good turnout, but we need everyone's help to get plenty of novice and junior players to fill out the other flights. If all LFDC and RCFDA members could convince just one new player to come, we would certainly surpass our attendance goals. Expect one more update before the Games, likely in a May-June issue of The Flyer. In the meantime, get those registration forms submitted, and practice those drives into the wind.

Q: What can you do to support disc golf?

A: Teach your friends to play.

The World's Biggest Disc Golf Weekend will be happening on over 200 courses around the world on May 14th & 15th. The idea is to get everybody who plays disc golf to play a round that weekend. To make it even more fun, everybody who enters will get an Innova golf disc and an MG Golfwear t-shirt for just $10.

This year the big city with the biggest turnout will win 9 DGA Disc Pole Holes™. Let's all go to Omaha's Seymore Smith Park on Saturday, May 14th, to help them attain their goal of a full 18 holes. We'll be playing in Lincoln at Interstate Course on Sunday, May 15th. Bring a friend and turn them on to the sport of the future. For more information and World's Biggest merchandise (order deadline: April 3rd), call LFDC's Tourney Director Rick Fleege at (402) 466-0857.

This was a historic day at the Seymour Smith course. Not only was it the park's first Ice Bowl, but it was also the first time all eighteen holes were set up to play with pole hole baskets. Granted there were some, shall we say, different baskets, but that just made it all the more fun and challenging. Another first was done by Terry Parker who shot a respectable 55 in Omaha and a sizzling 51 down in Lincoln to take home the gold in the first combined Nebraska Ice Bowl. Congratulations to Terry and all those who braved the cold and ice.

presents you with either doing that same anhyzer or a straight ahead shot through the new formed gap. A big huge shade tree by the hole #2 shelter is gone. Three large trees were cut down just past #5 and will be missed by other park users.

Many of the trees removed looked perfectly healthy. But to the city's arborists their time had perhaps come. The course got more than a little off the top, it flat out got a buzz-cut. Some pole holes are now left wide open and will have to be repositioned to bring back a challenge to the hole. Some relief is on the way from the Lower Platte Natural Resources District. We may be able to get 15 to 20 trees. But these trees will be small in comparison to the large trees that were removed.

More help is needed. Contact the Parks Department and, better yet, send in a tree donation to them. Each new tree costs around $50 and there are several LFDC members that would be glad to help plant any donated trees. Yes, the course has an unwanted new look but with more help we can make the Interstate Disc Golf Course better than ever.

COMING SOON:
RCFDA'S CALL TO ARMS...AUGUST 13-14...OMAHA

From the Chips

Thanks goes out to all who participated in LFDC's Fourth Annual Ice Bowl. Special thanks to Anita Jackson and David Nolte, without their assistance this tourney would not have been the success that it was. This being my first gig as a tournament director, I was most pleased with everything going as well as it did. One doesn't realize all of the details (promotional flyers, scoreboard, registration forms, etc.) that need attention before, during, and after each and every tourney.

Genesis: Anita and I met with Brad Packett, president of River City Flying Disc Association, several weeks before the tournaments took place. Brad had already established the three divisions and entry fees (advanced/$7, amateur/$5, and novice/$2). RCFDA were working in tandem with Omaha's Winterfestival. Eventually and hopefully in the future, Omaha will be site of the Cornhusker State Winter Games, of which the sport of disc golf will be part.

In order to simplify the promo materials, I followed the RCFDA's format. And since their isn't an open date before the Super Bowl any more, the dates of January 22nd and 29th were chosen so as not to miss any football. (Question: How many out there would still play disc golf, even if there were NFL championship games on TV?)

Thanks is given to the RCFDA for sharing the expenses of the promo flyer and overall advanced prize of the Ice Bowl sweatshirt. Also, thanks for the Ice Bowl disc loan. Kansas City, origin of the Ice Bowl, was delinquent in getting the discs to us in time for the Lincoln tourney, so we were fortunate to get a "disc loan" from River City until our comemerative discs arrived. This is the kind of cooperation that needs to be fostered for our sport to continue growing in Nebraska.

How many out there would still play disc golf, even if there were NFL championship games on TV?

Divisions: This tournament could've used open and women's divisions (and maybe a juniors'). Several players could've felt intimidated by playing against the competition in their "usual" division, due to the fact that only three divisions were offered instead of five or six. Sandbagging, or the accusation there of, probably wouldn't be eliminated but definitely minimized. Several divisions can always be offered for all of our tourneys, however, the TD should always reserve the option of combining them when there aren't enough players per division.

If we would've offered an open division, I probably would've done something like charge $15 per player and pay back 90% (keeping 10% for tourney expenses) to the top third of the open field. I'd like some feedback from open/pro players and would encourage the LFDC to establish a formula for our future open divisions.

Entry Fees: Again, I followed the RCFDA. The only thing I would suggest would be a discount for all LFDC tourneys for all LFDC members.

Rules: I was asked about the use of marker discs in the players' meeting. It was one of those little aforementioned details that wasn't discussed. My first response was "use'm if ya got'em," but later I got to thinkin.' In order to be taken as a legitimate tourney, sanctioned or not, we have to follow the PDGA Rulebook. And if we're going to encourage our novice players to play by the rules, we need to have minis for sale or offer them as part of the novice only player-pack. It would be a great souvenir for the new player and encourage awareness of the rules.

Procedures (past, present, and future): In addition to following the PDGA rules, all TDs need to send out the results to the local and disc golf press immediately after the tourney. So far, we got a nice little write up in the Lincoln Journal and the Star City Sports. TDs should also submit an expense report to the club, so we can see where all the money goes. We also agreed to sending in a donation of $1 per player to the local Parks and Recreation for each and every tourney. (I got that idea from Tom Christiansen of Streamwood, IL.) And last, all scores need to be posted on a scoreboard so we can all see where we are in our respective divisions and confirm properly posted totals.

Next Year/Next Tourney: It takes a minimum of one TD and two assistants for most tourneys, even a relatively small one like our Ice Bowl. One person can't do it all by him or herself. Let's be sure that all of the bases are covered for our Cornhusker Open this June. I encourage all LFDC members to volunteer to help out in any way possible to make sure all of our outings are successful ones. This is all supposed to be fun. And if our club and the sport of disc golf are going to get the respect that we believe we deserve, we need to appear professional and act professionally (and have fun, too.)

You Be The Judge: It was a cold and frozen scene, the 18 hole RCFDA Ice Bowl Tournament in Omaha. Considering the frozen tundra-like conditions, I shot what I thought was a respectable 62. I threw my discs in the car and decided to hang out and wait for the awards ceremony. After discussing the tourney with Pat Raybould, I found out that he had also shot a 62. Much to our surprise the tourney director announced our names and declared a tie in the amateur division, sudden death playoff for first place.

I retrieved my discs and Pat and I enthusiastically began. We battled back and forth with tied pars on the first three holes. On the fourth hole, I sent my drive flying. I was in three-land. Pat's drive was a bit short of mine, but I knew he had the pressure on me. I assessed the distance and let go. It was at least fifty feet. I just wanted a comfortable lay up putt. It went in! The sounds of the chains signaled my first victory. I couldn't believe it. I won in sudden death.

The award ceremony was held. I received a first place plaque, an Ice Bowl disc, and an Omaha Winterfest blue ribbon. Photographs were taken. Several of us went out for beers and burgers to celebrate the victory. Everyone I met the next day who knew of my involvement with the disc golf community was told the story of the sudden death, the fifty foot putt...

The following evening, Sunday, January 30th, the TD called me at home, informing me that a mistake in scoring had been made; a score of 59 had been found. He wanted me to return my first place plaque and my blue ribbon. (I was told I could keep the disc.) Pat was to give me his second place ribbon. The "fourth" place was to give Pat her "third" place ribbon. I was speechless. What was I to say?

On Monday, January 31st, my plaque, ribbon, and first disc golf victory were taken away back to Omaha.

I'm asking the disc golfing community: What do you think I should've done in this situation? What would you have done if this had happened to you?

See you on the chips...
